NARCISSISTS, PSYCHOPATHS AND BULLIES, OH MY!
INSIGHTS FOR MANAGERS.

Speaker: Daven Morrison, M.D., Organizational Psychiatrist, President of Morrison Associates, will lead a change to talk about specific cases to help understand and manage these challenges effectively.

About This Seminar

From bumper stickers and flags on the drive into work, to the strange and extreme opinions shared on Nextdoor.com, the balanced and objective problem-solving mind of the public manager and their team is regularly at risk of derailment.

How do we know how to lead in moments like this? Where do the strong feelings come from, and what does a leader do when things become emotional? Perhaps most challenging of all, how do we manage the bullies, narcissists, and psychopaths who intentionally stir things up? This program is designed for case discussion and consultation with Dr. Morrison and peers.

Learning Objectives:

- Gain deeper explorations on concepts related to the uptick in hostility due to psychopaths and narcissists, including those encountered in the workplace or within the communities we serve.
- Gain insight into the role of emotions in the current work environment and why things turn hostile for municipal workers.
- Learn how emotions work and how to manage them to avoid making things worse.
- Recognize how emotions and certain patterns limit thinking and problem-solving.
- Learn how to create a safe environment for both conservatives and liberals and how to appreciate each, especially the one less like you.
